

ABSTRACT

An optical disc stores an AVClip including a video stream and a graphics stream showing a subtitle. A resolution for the AVClip is obtained from Clip information. After this, a ratio
5 is calculated between the obtained resolution and a resolution of a display apparatus that can be connected to a reproducing apparatus. A subtitle content that is selected according to the calculated resolution ratio is reproduced along with the video stream.

10